Apply some effective one-on-one leadership skills to help motivate individuals and teams.

Learn how to apply scientific leadership theory to everyday leadership situations

What will the participants learn in this training session?

The Leadership Effectiveness for Individual and Small Group Leaders course is a very fun, interactive, 40-hour, leadership training course, based on current behavioral and social science leadership theories and practices. This course focuses on three key leadership areas: Leading Individuals, Leading Groups, and Understanding the Leaders Role/Authority/Power, and gives the student a chance to explore their own leadership potential while developing proven leadership skill. This course has no prerequisites.

Who are the best people to attend this training?

This course is designed to increase the leadership competency for those who supervise others, who are leaders of individuals or small groups (Trainers, Front-line Supervisors, Team Leaders, Unit Managers, etc). This course is also a preparatory leadership class for those who are seeking to advance to a leadership position, or who have been placed in an acting leadership position.

Recognize what stage your teams are in and how to move them into performing, and keep them there.

Learn how you can be supportive while still getting the employee to perform to expectations.
